DOROTHY DIX
 Wife's Place Is With Poor Husband, Not Rich Parents

Dear Miss Dix: When we were married 10 years ago, my husband got a job as a store clerk and has been doing the same work ever since. My parents are fairly well-to-do and have been good enough to provide me with spending money besides arranging for a visit with them every year.

My husband objects strenuously to these trips. He refuses to accompany me and dislikes my parents. I should think he'd like to see me have fun, but his reaction is just the opposite. Lately he's taken to drinking and I must use my own money for my daughter's clothes. I don't think my husband is serious about supporting his family and I'm thinking of divorce. I know my folks will increase my allowance and will assure my child's education. I'm with my parents now, and dread going back to my husband.

Answer: You were probably a spoiled darling at 15, and you most certainly are a selfish, egotistical woman now. To a character already weakened by overindulgence, I doubt if there's a more destructive force than the wide-open purse of well-to-do parents. It certainly has been your downfall.

No Incentive
 Satisfying your whims on private funds was not the way to successful marriage. Your husband may have lacked initiative to get a better job, but the man had no incentive. You robbed him of that with the constant reminders of Dad's good fortune. Money, clothes, vacations, all were flaunted by you before a husband who couldn't possibly see his way clear to providing such luxuries. The role of a good wife would have been to get by on whatever he made, saving private means to help buy a store or otherwise promote your husband's welfare.

Now that you're comfortably, even luxuriously, ensconced in your parents' home, hubby's domicile looks pretty shabby. How easy, how lazy, how carefree is would be to sponge on your folks the rest of your life.

If you have a spark of true womanliness left, you'll go back to your husband, without a pocketful of your parents' money, and work side-by-side with him to build a future. With encouragement from you, he'd go ahead in business. Woman is supposed to be man's helpmate. Why not try this role for a change?

Dear Miss Dix: I am 23, married and have one child. Since the birth of my baby boy a year ago, I haven't seen much of my husband. He spends almost all his time with the baby — considerably more than he spends with me. I would like more children eventually, but the way my husband is acting I'm afraid to bring up the subject.

Answer: Your husband loves children, so why hesitate to bring up the subject of more babies? He'd probably be delighted. Thank your lucky stars that he does pay attention to his son. Many fathers tend to ignore babies, saving their attention till the child walks and talks.

Dear Miss Dix: At the lake, where we spend our summers, we have a neighbor with a good-looking son. This boy and I have been thrown together by both sets of parents, who would love to see us get serious. However, I don't know whether my feeling for him is love or not.

Answer: Sometimes parental approval works the wrong way. When Mom and Dad try to promote a match, young people are apt to get bored. No need to rush a decision in this case. Stay good friends and let the future take care of itself.

 times you know what the candidate is going to say. Sometimes, he catches you flat-footed.

One dark night in 1952, somewhere north of Seattle, Eisenhower unexpectedly broke out a brand new line of attack. It came toward the end of a back-platform talk in a small town. Typewriters began to smoke in the press car. The train started to move. We ripped the copy from the machines, yelled "Western Union," and to our horror, saw the headline roll all the stories to a single ball of paper, and hurl them out into darkness.

"Don't worry," he said, soothingly. "My guy will find that copy and your offices will get it." And by golly, they did.

It wasn't always like that, the heat wasn't on.

Frequently, there was time to mingle with the crowd packed around the rear car. Then you got a voter's-eye view of the candidate. You could sense his strong and weak points, and how the people were reacting, and what they said and what attracted them.

For instance, it was worth a lot of votes to Eisenhower, four years ago, when, at the end of a talk, he would say, "And now, I would like to introduce my Mamie."

There were the times, too, when he would mosey into the press car and sit around, just talking. He was friendly and natural — and a good story would usually come out of these talks.

Well, many scenes stand out. Adlai Stevenson's tact and graceful behavior in a fearful storm in Springfield, Mass. The 90-mile-an-hour automobile ride down the Jersey Turnpike. Going into little airports in the Far West where a four-engine plane had never gone before. The dawn departures and the "laundry stops" where they lost your laundry. The photographers' compartment on the train, labeled the "Rewhonesie Club" read it backwards.

And of course, Jackson, Mich. A small boy crowding close around the press section, tapped me on the shoulder as I typed. "Are you 'Reiman Morin'?" he asked.

Preened and puffed. Recognition, at last. "Why, yes," I said, modestly. "How did you know?"

"I can read," he said scornfully — pointing to my name on the typewriter cover.

The Zambezi River at the boundary of Northern Rhodesia and Southern Rhodesia is 5,500 feet wide where it leaps into the Rift.

There is evidence that voting paper was made in England by two other types of paper were made there.

Crossett Opens New Mill to Public View

By JOHN HASLAM
CROSSETT (UP)—The Crossett company opened for public inspection Monday Tuesday its new $16,000,000 paper mill that manufactures bleached board for food containers.

The modern new plant went into production last December. More than 1,500 Crossett and Ashley county citizens got their first look at it Monday. The following day about 40 newspaper, magazine, radio and television writers and photographers from throughout the state and the United States were guests of the company on a tour of the plant.

Company officials said the new plant employs about 200 persons and has an annual payroll of $750,000.

The Crossett company's research laboratories perfected a manufacturing process whereby pulp from hardwoods is blended with pulp from pines to produce the bleached food board that is used for milk and ice cream containers, paper cups, and other food packages. The plant produces 150 tons daily of the bleached food board, the equivalent of a strip 17 feet wide and 55 miles long.

It is the first mill of its kind in the nation. The mill debarks and chips hardwoods, such as oak and red gum abundant in the company's 548,000-acre forest. The chips are boiled into pulp, blended with pine pulp, bleached and then processed into the food board, under specifications set up by the converter companies that turn out the finished products.

William C. Norman, vice president and general manager of the company, was enthusiastic about the possibilities of the mill.

"In view of the tremendous acreage of these types of hardwoods that heretofore have produced at best only marginal tree farm crops, these new outlets in an economy that is demanding more and more paper products every day, portends economic developments of great significance for the nation, we believe."

"Our process might well in the future turn millions of acres of timber which has had only limited markets in the past into riches of security, payrolls and profits for vast numbers of people," he said.

Man Named Jones Opposes Vance Clayton

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A 61-year-old Junction City man who's never made a race for state office has announced that he'll oppose state Treasurer J. Vance Clayton in next summer's Democratic primaries.

The candidate, Roy L. Jones, filed his anti-corrupt practices and party loyalty pledges with the secretary of state here yesterday. However, he didn't put up his ballot fee.

Clayton already has qualified for renomination. Jones is his first opponent. In a letter to Secretary of State C. G. Hall, Jones said he had "noted with interest the past several years how well established and how popular the name 'Jones' is in politics."

"They have done very well so I thought I might give it a filing."

PRESCOTT NEWS

Rev. Yearby Lion's Club Speaker

James Barham was program chairman at the weekly meeting of Prescott Lion's Club on Thursday night at the Broadway Hotel and introduced Rev. W. A. Lindsey who in turn introduced Rev. I. L. Yearby, Secretary of the Department of Evangelism of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, who was the guest speaker.

Clint Nichols, accompanied by Mrs. Ike Sharp at the piano sang a solo.

Other guests were Rev. W. G. Bensberg, Dr. James A. Overholser of Hot Springs and J. L. Barker of Little Rock.

The club realized $254.55 from the variety Show and will be used for the Lion's Club Blind Fund.

Kiwanis Entertain Ministers

The Kiwanis Club entertained ministers participating at the City-wide revival services at the regular meeting on Thursday evening at the Broadway Hotel.

President J. T. Worthington presided. Rev. Howard L. Williams and Clint Nichols sang a duet and a vocal solo by Mr. Nichols was also enjoyed. Miss Judy Gilbert played the piano accompaniment.

Rev. W. G. Bensberg, Dr. James A. Overholser, Rev. W. A. Lindsey, Rev. I. L. Yearby, Rev. Ford L. Boone, Rev. Sidney Patrick and Rev. W. D. Golden were also guests.

Cast For Senior Class Play Announced

"Out of This World" a three act comedy by Paul McCoy will be presented by the senior class of the Prescott High School April 13.

The following cast was selected in try-outs this week: Linda Russell, Freddy Moberg; Pauline Russell, Judy Gilbert; Otis Kirby, Tommy Dundee; Homer Judson, Gladwin Connell; Bruce Judson, David Hanning; June Bishop, Betty Danner; Donna Craig, Mary Nell Bolls; Phoebe Atkins, Patsy Ellis; Miss Edith Crest, Betty Eyrkine; Glenn Willard, Carl Dalrymple, Jr.; Leo Dennis, Doyle Covington; and Myrtle Huff, Charlotte DeWoody.

Mrs. Frank Anderson is directing the play and will be assisted by Miss Iris Westbrook and Miss Ann Sutterfield, practice teachers from Henderson State Teachers College.

West Prescott HD Club Meets

The West Prescott Home Demonstration club met March 21 in the home of Mrs. Dawson Henry.

The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. A. E. McGuire.

The devotional was given by Mrs. George Hunt, taken from 1 Cor. 13th chapter. Prayer was given by Mrs. Loy Ferguson.

Roll call was answered by each member giving a recipe for a happy candidate wrote.

There has been speculation that state Land Commissioner Jimmy (Red) Jones will oppose Clayton. As a gubernatorial appointee to his present job, Jones is ineligible under law to succeed himself. Gov. Orval Faubus named Jones to serve out the unexpired term of the late Claude A. Rankin as land commissioner.

Sam Jones of Little Rock, who has lost twice to Clayton, is regarded as a possible candidate for land commissioner.

Academy Prize Makes a Star of Borgnine

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Except for the workings of fate, Ernest Borgnine might today be a Navy pensioner, an air conditioning worker or an electrical equipment salesman.

Instead, he's the king of Hollywood, having won filmland's top prize, the Academy Award.

Ernie never gave a thought to acting until he was almost 30. His first career was the Navy. He enlisted in 1935, when the waning depression still made jobs scarce.

He went in the Navy at 18, came out 10 years later, he was exactly 100 pounds heavier. His service was largely on the World War I destroyer Lamberton and a converted yacht, the Sylph.

"If I had stayed in the Navy, I would have gotten out on a pension a few months ago," he observes. "I might have stayed in too if it hadn't been for the war. By 1945, I had had enough war and water and 'Yes, sir' and 'No, sir.' So I got out."

"But I wouldn't trade those 10 years for anything. The Navy taught me a lot of things. It molded me as a man, and I made a lot of wonderful friends." One of his most prized telegrams after he won the Oscar was from his former skipper.

Ernie thought he would go into air conditioning, in which he had dabbled during a two-month period between Navy stints. He almost took a job with a company, but the plan was in Syracuse. He didn't want to travel that far from his family's home in New Haven, Conn.

"So what happens?" he laughs. "I got into a business that has had me traveling ever since." Largely on his mother's insistence, he tried acting. His only formal training was four months at the Randall School of Dramatic Arts in Hartford. He got his seasoning at the famed Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va.

He toured as a hospital attendant in "Harvey," did summer stock, played a small part in the film "Whistle at Eaton Falls" in New England and portrayed the villain Nargola in TV's "Captain Video."

But there were long lapses between jobs, and Ernie almost despaired. His low point came after he had returned to New York from a Hollywood film, "The Mob," with Broderick Crawford.

"It was in 1951," he recalls. "I was walking down Broadway and I met a guy I had worked with in 'Whistle at Eaton Falls.' He said he had been looking for me, that he was now in the electrical business and doing great. He offered me a job starting at $8,000."

Ernie, who had earned $2,300 from acting that year, said, "This is for me!" He stood by for the job to begin, turning down a stage offer and a TV job. But he never saw the friend again, and he had to return to acting.

His career began to improve. He did some important things in TV, then came to Hollywood to play the sadistic Fatso Judson in "From Here to Eternity." Then came a stream of film heavies. Once director Nick Ray warned him "Get out of Hollywood in Miss Boney Thomas of El Dorado were the Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Thomas.

Mrs. Gene Lee has returned from a visit in Orange, Texas and was accompanied by Mrs. Eugene Riddling and son who spent the weekend here.

Gilbert Buchanan, student at the Arkansas School of Medicine in Little Rock, spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. William Buchanan.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Robinson, Jenny and Betty Lynn of El Dorado were weekend guests of Mrs. Mettie Robinson and Mr. Jim Wood.

Mr. Mrs. Orville Brakehill and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Brakehill and Dianne of Stamps spent the weekend with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson White had as their weekend guests Mrs. Emond White, Eddie and Emond Jr., of Fort Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wilson and daughters of Arkadelphia spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Fay Pittman.

Mrs. Madge Burgess and sons of Berryville visited Mrs. Roy Davis Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Regan, John and George St. Malvern visited friends here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Smith and Miss Julia Smith of Arkadelphia were Sunday visitors in Prescott. Mr. Smith was soloist at the First Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Turner and Mr. and Mrs. Clive Johnson visited in Magnolia Sunday.

Mrs. L. C. Gatlin had as her Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Horace Williamson of El Dorado.

Mrs. C. H. Tompkins was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McFarland in Little Rock.

Mrs. Edgar Andrews, Mrs. Russell Moberg and Mrs. Roy Ganss accompanied Miss Carolyn Sue Andrews to Southern State College, Magnolia Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harris and Jane of Shreveport, La. were the weekend guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Y. L. Loveland and two years or you will be typed forever."

Ernie often thought about the admonition. Two years later, almost to the day, he won the role of "Marty," the tender, love-starved butcher.

The Oscar winner was born Jan. 24, 1917, in Hamden, Conn. His father was a freight train brakeman, his mother the daughter of a count. She took Ernie to live in Italy for a few years when he was young. He can still recall seeing Mussolini, clad completely in black atop a white horse, parading through the Milan square. "My mother hated his guts," Ernie says.

POOR SMELLERS

Many birds have a poor sense of smell. The buzzard depends almost entirely on sight to locate his special diet, and the horned owl's favorite dinner is skunk.

A. P. & L. Refused PSC Rehearing

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Power & Light Co. today was refused a rehearing on its application for a one million dollar yearly rate increase but it received permission to appeal its rate case to Pulaski Circuit Court.

The decision was announced by the Arkansas Public Service Commission.

The PSC turned down AP&L's application for higher rates. After several months of hearing, an earlier AP&L bid for higher rates already is before the commission. It was appealed after the commission turned down the power company's request for a rate increase totaling $4,200,000 a year. AP&L contends that it needs both increases to earn a six percent return on its investment.

Around the World

PARIS, (UP)—There is a deep current of discontent running through the people in the Soviet Union, according to an American leader just returned from Moscow.

Paul B. Anderson, of White Plains, N. Y., associate executive of the International Y. M. C. A., told the press correspondent Anderson yesterday that the Russians do not show it openly.

"It is rather like a 1st-down strike," he said. "They just sit tight and things don't get done. In a country that is entirely dependent on production for its progress, that is impossible, and the government must realize it."

Anderson returned here Wednesday from a 10-day visit to Russia with a delegation of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States.

He said the current campaign to degrade Josef Stalin started with decrees by Communist Party First Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev on Nov. 11, 1934, condemning religious persecution.

"There is a great religious feeling, and it was the government's recognition of this in 1934 which was the start of this new line which attacks personal dictatorship," Anderson said.

"It is a return to Lenin."

"Lenin said the proletariat were the possessors of truth and of the right of government, and the party must represent the people. The Soviet leaders are now seeking to show that is the policy they intend to follow," he said.

THORNE, England, (UP)—William Bunting charged yesterday the local council set cockroaches studies back six years when they evicted him from his house.

He filed suit against the council for "wantonly destroying" his extensive cockroach collection.

Bunting said most of his collection, which took six years to amass, died when the council forced him to move. The council offered him a new home if he got rid of the bugs.

Bunting said he was making the most thorough examination of cockroaches ever attempted when the council interrupted his work. He said he was consulted by many universities and by the American Department of Agriculture on the subject of American cockroaches.

North Dakota League May Bolt GOP

BISMARCK, N. D. (UP)—An uneasy political kinship of 40 years standing in North Dakota is headed for a breakup. The Nonpartisan League, which fought Republican policies almost everywhere except at the ballot box, is ready to cross over to the Democrats.

The switch poses a threat to long-time GOP control in a state which has voted Democratic in a presidential race only four times since 1900.

The league has been a faction of the state Republican party. It has put up its own candidates in Republican primaries against more conservative elements. But up until now it has always been welded to the GOP in the general elections.

The shift, expected to materialize at the NPL's biennial endorsing convention here today and tomorrow, has been in the works for almost 10 years. It has been sparked by a group of "insurgents" who believe the league has long been out of place in the Republican column.

The switch leaves unclear the position of the volatile Sen. Langer (R-ND), a driving force behind the league for more than two decades.

He declined comment yesterday on his plans should the league abandon the Republican banner.

However, Rep. Usher Burdick, also a veteran leaguer, said he would file for re-election with the GOP. Langer is not up for re-election until 1938.

The effects of the league's turn-about nationally are hard to measure. Unquestionably the up-to-now weak state Democratic party will be toughened. Yet there is no way of telling how many leaguers will follow the organization into the Democratic rolls.

While it has organized with the Republicans, the league's aims and programs usually have a Democratic look. In some cases they have gone beyond the Democratic party's liberal movement.

The league captured control of the Legislature in 1916 and started putting the state into business with such ventures as the Bank of North Dakota, the state mill and elevator and a hall insurance department.

Most North Dakota Republicans downgrade talk that the shift is a product of a widespread "farm revolt" in this farming state.

Few contest that there has been some dissatisfaction with administration farm policies. Langer, Burdick and Sen. Young (R-ND), the latter a league opponent, have dogged Agriculture Secretary Benson's policies at almost every turn.

Informal Meet at Top Level to Set Pattern

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—President Eisenhower was reported today to regard his experiment in informal diplomacy as such a success that it may set a pattern for similar talks in the future.

His meeting with Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Mexican President President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines came to an end last night with no agreements sought or made and no problems solved.

But Eisenhower was said to feel the three heads of government and their foreign ministers had gained good will and understanding which would be helpful in future negotiations. The meeting opened Monday night in the swanky Greenbrier Hotel.

"This meeting has achieved exactly what it was called for," said White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty. "That purpose has been most successfully carried out here and the President and Secretary of State Dulles feel just that."

Ruiz Cortines and St. Laurent were reported to hold similar views.

Officials said it is now certain that Eisenhower will entertain Prime Minister Nehru away from Washington, in similar informal style, when Nehru visits him in July.

St. Laurent told reporters it is to be assumed there will be another round of Canadian-American-Mexican talks sometime but that no plans had been made.

The meeting here was relaxed and easy-going. The only table the Big Three gathered round was the dinner table. When they talked business they sat on armchairs and sofas. The one real business session was devoted to a generalized survey of world affairs.

He was hospitalized last July and received roentgen treatment. He left the hospital Jan. 30, apparently on the road to recovery, but was hospitalized again March 5 when he suffered new stomach pains and swelling of the legs.

Doctors said he suffered from a severe lack of white corpuscles, attributed to the effects of the atom bomb. His white corpuscle count was 18,000 compared to 78,000 for a normal person, it was said.

Crazed Negro Is Captured by a Posse

CALLANDS, Va. (AP)—Police early today captured asleep in a creekbed a beserk Negro who had held them off with gunfire for 10 hours and then escaped them in the darkness.

Lum Harris, about 46, was tracked to some reeds by bloodhounds soon after they were put on the trail near the farm home from which Harris had escaped.

He fled when a police armored car smashed down the walls of the house.

Harris, sought by police for battering his aged father critically with a hammer, wounded four police of the 20 police on the siege.

Eight tear gas grenades fired into the house failed to dislodge him, although witnesses said the house was so full of fumes it appeared to be on fire.

The bloodhounds made a beeline for Harris and stood over him as he lay sleeping. He awoke and reached for his deadly four-pound hammer and chain with which he had beaten his father. Two state troopers grabbed him and shackled his hands.

After that Harris, a former mental hospital inmate, was a threat. He was suffering from a gunshot wound in his right eye, and a wound in the right leg.

Harris was charged with two counts of attempted murder and three counts of malicious assault.

The father, Johnny Harris, 87, was taken to Lynchburg Hospital last night with critical head injuries. Hospital attendants said he had a fractured skull.

State police and other officers gave this account of the battle: Pennsylvania County Sheriff Henry O. Winn and Deputy Sheriff Edgar Cooper were called to the remote farm home late yesterday by neighbors, who reported Lum Harris was "trying to kill" his father.

Sheriff Winn was struck on the head with a hammer when he tried to arrest Harris. He was not hurt seriously.

During an ensuing gun battle, Chatham Town Officer Pink Winn, a nephew of the sheriff, was struck in the foot and ankle by a shotgun blast and Deputy Sheriff Tommy English was wounded in the thigh by another shotgun blast. The sheriff said he and Cooper

ARKANSAN KILLED
ROLLA, Mo. (AP)—Everett E. Campbell, 59, of Fayetteville, Ark., was killed yesterday in a 4-car collision on U. S. Highway 66 about 15 miles west of here.

Two other men were injured. They are E. G. Parks, 68, and C. E. Preston, 70, both of Cincinnati.

State Police said Campbell's car swerved to the opposite side of the 4-lane highway and crashed into Parks' car. An auto which was being towed by Campbell's car then hit another vehicle, officers said.

Russian Secret Service Chief Leaves Britain

LONDON (UP) — Soviet Security Chief Ivan Serov who was denounced in the British press as an "odious thug" and a "butcher" cut short his visit to Britain today and left for Moscow in a Soviet jet airliner.

There were reports yesterday Serov would return to Moscow sooner than expected because of the press attacks the Russians feared might backfire against the state visit here next month of Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist Party Leader Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Criticism against the Bulganin-Khrushchev visit was mounting hourly and official protests were placed before the House of Commons today. Serov came here to check security arrangements for the visit on his leaders.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik said Serov would return with Bulganin and Khrushchev on their ten-day visit in mid-April. He had been expected to remain here until they arrived but his swift jet plane departed at 8:23 a. m. (2:23 a. m. CST) for Moscow.

Serov flew here last Thursday in a twin-engine Soviet TU-104 transport on a non-stop flight from the Soviet capital. The plane had remained at London airport under unusually heavy guard during his stay.

Reporters asked Serov today if he would be returning but he brushed aside their questions. Malik then told them "he will return with Mr. Bulganin and Mr. Khrushchev."

"Both sides were cooperative," Malik said of Serov's efforts to tighten security arrangements. "It was successful."

Serov drove to the airport with

Predicts Arkansas Population Hike

PINE BLUFF, (UP) — The president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., Edwin M. Clark, of St. Louis, yesterday predicted an increase of 500,000 in the population of Arkansas within the next 20 years.

Clark, who spoke before the Chamber of Commerce here, said he thought Arkansas' population would jump from 1,800,000 to about 2,300,000 by 1975.

Clark also said the telephone company was planning to spend some $13,000,000 in construction in Arkansas in 1957. He said this was evidence of the company's faith in the state.

The utility officials pegged the population increase to industrial growth. He said, "Industry will come to Arkansas for many reasons partially because of the strategic location of the state and its proximity to more than one-third of the nation's population."

Mentioning the trend for move-ment in an embassy sedan, Commander Leonard Burt head of Scotland Yard's famous special branch was at the airport to say farwell.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd was going before the House of Commons to answer questions on Serov's brief tour.

The Soviet leaders were denounced in a public meeting in Manchester last night as "seasoned professional terrorists" and a former member of parliament called Khrushchev the "butcher of the Ukraine."

At the same time the London Daily Mail reported that Khrushchev had launched a purge of former Premier Georgi Malenkov's friends in Russia. It predicted Malenkov would be hauled back to Russia before he ends his tour of British power stations next week.

State Co-ops Still Planning Steam Plant

WASHINGTON (UP) — Arkansas' rural electric co-operatives went before a congressional committee today in an effort to keep alive a contract under which they would borrow 10½ million dollars to build a steam generating plant.

The delegation, led by Rep. Trimble (D-Ark), appeared before a House Appropriations subcommittee. Representatives of co-operatives in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Louisiana appeared in support of the Arkansas request.

The Arkansas co-operatives want Congress to reinstate the loan contract it has with the Rural Electrification Administration. Unless Congress acts, the contract will expire this year under a clause which required that the proposed generating plant be completed by 1956.

When the 18 co-ops, organized as the Arkansas State Electric Co-operative, Inc., obtained the loan several years ago, they planned to build a 30,000-kilowatt plant at Ozark, Ark. The plant, and its transmission lines, would have been leased to the federal Southwestern Power Administration, which in turn would have sold power produced by the plant to the co-ops.

However, a group of private utilities, led by Arkansas Power & Light Co., objected and won an Arkansas Supreme Court decision prohibiting construction of the plant. Then, last year the Arkansas Legislature approved two bills clearing the way for the co-ops to ment of population out of Arkansas, Clark said the influx of industry in the future would provide livelihood for educated Arkansas youth is their own state.

Soil Stewardship Sunday

Sunday, May 6, has been designated by the President of the United States as Soil Stewardship Sunday.

The purpose is to remind people of all walks of life that man is but a steward, not owner, of God's soil, water and plants. All people have a responsibility in saving or protecting these resources.

It is hoped that every preacher in Hempstead County will preach a sermon on Soil Stewardship May 6.

This is a Nation-wide drive. Any preacher that does not have material to develop a sermon may obtain a booklet of selected sermons on Soil Stewardship from the local Soil Conservation Service Office, located in the Hempstead County Courthouse.

Hermann Field Unexpectedly Returns Home

NEW YORK (UP) — Hermann Field, former Cleveland architect who spent five years as a Polish prisoner, returned unannounced on the liner Queen Mary today after an absence of nearly seven years.

He said that his brother, Noel, another principal in the "long mystery of the 'disappearing fields,'" is a "pretty sick man" in Budapest, Hungary.

Asked if Noel still is a prisoner, Field replied "that's anybody's guess." He said he writes to his brother occasionally to "keep the lines open."

Field, 46, was accompanied by his London-born wife, Kate, and two sons, Hugh, 12, and Allen, 10. Noel Field, a former U.S. State Department official, and his wife dropped out of sight in May 1949 in Communist Czechoslovakia.

Herman was arrested three months later in Poland while searching for his brother.

The Poles released Hermann in October 1954 after, he said, he spent five years in a cellar as a prisoner of the Polish security police. Noel and his wife, Herta, were freed by the Hungarians a month later, but they decided to stay in Hungary and requested political asylum.

Herman Field received $50,000 from the Polish government as compensation for his imprisonment, and $1,500 more for medical treatment during convalescence after his release.

"I was never officially charged with anything," said Field, 46, a one-time architectural planner for Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

"The more they investigated, the less they found out," he said of Polish officials. He said the State Department, urged by his wife and a sister, Dr. Elsie Doob, a physician of Urbana, Ill., protested frequently, but the "Poles claimed they knew nothing about me."

He said the mystery of his whereabouts finally was uncovered when a Polish colonel named Swiatlo defected and informed U.S. authorities he had been instrumental in kidnapping Field.

Mrs. Field, meantime, was in London with her parents and the two children, both born in New York City.

Field said he planned to go to Washington for several days and later to Urbana. He said he hoped to return to architecture.

"I want to emphasize again the tremendous help our government was to us," Field said. "I also feel very grateful to the American Institute of Architects, who never gave up the fight for my release."

Canada's Parliament The Canadian Parliament consists of two houses: the Senate, whose members are nominated for life, and the House of Commons, whose members are elected directly by the people for terms of five years.

Begin building the facility. The legislative action came too late to meet the REA's construction deadline, forcing the co-ops to seek congressional relief.

Last year, Congress approved reinstatement of similar REA-Co-op contracts in Missouri.

In addition to asking the House committee for the help, the Arkansas delegation also expressed disapproval of a proposal by President Eisenhower to boost SPA wholesale over rates by 40 per cent. Most of SPA's customers are rural co-ops and municipalities. SPA markets power produced at government dams in the South-west.

TURTLE STOPPERS

OKEECHOBEE Fla. (UP) — Loggerhead turtles clog pipes bringing water from the Okeechobee Lake into town yesterday. While pumps were temporarily shut down for new pipe installations the turtles crawled into the system and acted like so many stoppers. Crews worked all night to get the pipes cleared and water flowing again.

New Weapon Handed to Probers

BY JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON, 14—The Justice Department, armed with a new weapon just handed it by the Supreme Court, will now go ahead with the job of trying to make reluctant witnesses unravel some Red conspiracies in the United States.

The court yesterday upheld the immunity law passed in 1954 by Congress to make unwilling witnesses "Communists" or non-Communists—testify in court cases involving national security. Spying, for instance.

This law says that if a witness before a federal grand jury or congressional committee investigating a case involving national security refuses to testify on the grounds he might incriminate himself—he can be guaranteed that he won't be prosecuted. What if he still refuses? He can be cited for contempt and jailed.

But the court limited itself to saying this law could be used by the Justice Department in making grand jury investigations. It did not say it was all right for congressional committees to use it.

The court may rule later in the "Communist" favor.

Grand juries and congressional committees have been hampered in their inquiries into communism by "witnesses" use of the Fifth Amendment, which says a man cannot be forced to testify to anything which might "incriminate him."

Once a man claims up behind this amendment neither a jury nor a committee can tell whether he really has anything to fear or is just refusing to talk to protect friends or acquaintances.

Yet the amendment is intended to protect only the witness himself from saying anything which might lead to his own prosecution.

Congress two years ago passed the immunity law, which applies only when a witness in a national security case invokes the Fifth Amendment before a grand jury or congressional committee. This can be done by the Justice Department or the committee can ask a federal judge to "promise" the witness he will not be prosecuted for anything he says, even though he involves himself in a crime in the security case in question by his testimony.

This wipes out any need for the Fifth Amendment in his case. The promise of immunity takes the place of the Fifth Amendment in protecting him from prosecution.

Having been offered immunity in exchange for his testimony, if he still won't talk he can be cited for contempt and jailed. This is what happened when a federal grand jury making the first use of the 1954 law, questioned William Ludwig Ullman about a wartime Washington spy ring.

He invoked the Fifth Amendment, was granted immunity, refused to talk, was sentenced to six months in jail, and appealed all the way up to the Supreme Court.

Now, with the court upholding the law, a Justice department spokesman said it will go ahead with its investigations.

Chapter XXVII

Lisa fell against his sobbing. He shoved her away and she fell on a cot. He closed the door.

"You fool! You wretched fool!" she sobbed. "Nico was picked up by the Gestapo. He is in Averoff Prison. Dr. Thackeray is in hiding."

She stopped, arose and came close to Mike. He leveled the pistol at her. She raised her hand and smacked his cheek. Mike smacked her back.

They glared at each other in hatred.

"The Gestapo may know of this place now," she said. "We have another place for you."

Mike remained motionless, his pale-blue eyes piercing her. She stepped around him and walked to the door.

He spun around, seized her arm and pulled her close to him.

"What are you up to now?" he said, shaking her violently.

"Vassili! Vassili! I almost lost my mind!"

"Oh, Lisa... Lisa..."

Her fingers tore at his hair and she pulled his face to her lips.

"Lisa... Lisa... Lisa..."

Mike and Lisa entered a brick mansion at Sotavriandou, 125, in Athens. The place was empty, unfurnished and felt haunted. He followed her up three flights of a circular stairway guarded by a massive mahogany rail. The house echoed its emptiness.

On the third floor they walked down a dusty hall to a door. Lisa unlocked the door which led to another flight of stairs. The steps creaked under their weight.

She ushered him into a meagerly furnished garret.

"I must leave now."

They embraced and kissed.

"I'll hurry back as soon as I can," she whispered.

It was very quiet in the garret. He remembered another time—the day he was in the hills looking down at Kalamai. Athens was stricken and suffering but now she looked peaceful, as though she was ready to fall into an untroubled slumber.

An echo thundered through the empty house. He opened his eyes and saw the aura of lights around the city. He heard Lisa's footsteps moving up the long circular stair. His blood boiled as they neared. The door clicked open and he felt her presence in the dark room.

"Vassili?" her half-frightened voice called.

"Here—by the window."

A bluish light filtered over the room. Her shadow preceded her toward him. Their hands touched.

"I love you, Vassili. Let us be grateful for these few hours and not think of something a century from now."

"It's so fantastic that this should happen."

"It is not fantastic. I think I loved you the moment I saw you in the cottage in Kaloghriani. I did not think I was capable of feeling this way again about anyone."

"That's funny," he said. "I guess we're two of a kind."

They sat in front of the garret window having dinner at daybreak. Steaks and wine. Mike loaded his pipe with the last pinch of tobacco he had.

"You know, Vassili, the Germans could soften up the rear ends of their cows a bit."

"No excuses because you're bad cook."

A feathery cloud formed outside their window and the hills faded from sight.

"This is a good day for..."

Mike cut it short.

"A good day for what, dear?"

"Nothing."

He was about to say, "A good day for writing." Somehow he could always write better when the weather was nasty. Just a writer's quirk, he thought.

She cleared the dishes and they lingered over cups of ersatz coffee.

He was blind with love for her. Lisa was an enchanted dream and he had wandered into her enchantment.

"Lisa, tell me about yourself."

"It is not very pleasant..."

All her sadness seemed to return. She looked away from him and through the misted window and her mind drifted into a haunted past.

It had been a good life. Her mother, an Englishwoman of great beauty. Her father, a gentle little man who owned a small prosperous factory. Lisa had finished her studies at the university and, encouraged by her father's love of music, she had studied piano at the conservatories in Rome and Paris.

A close family... A concert career coming... Just about all the fulfillment one could ask of life. Then, a foolish, heady, whirlwind romance with an ambitious young engineer which ended in marriage. Lisa learned the extent of his ambition after the German occupation. He absconded with the family money, the factory and her two sons.

Her mother, fortunately, did not see this happen. Lisa had not believed her gentle father to be a man of great courage, but he showed it at his death in Averoff Prison.

There was more to Lisa's story, Mike felt, but he asked no more. She put on her trench coat and booted in front of a small stained mirror.

"There are many arrangements to be made. I will return as early as possible."

She stopped at the door and turned to him.

"I suppose it was foolish of us to have fallen in love."

Mike paced the floor after she left. It would take all the courage he had to leave her now. Maybe the Underground would let her leave Greece.

Chapter XXVIII

Thursday, Mike had hoped Lisa would be gone. It would have been easier. He had to keep his appointment with Julius Chesney.

He put on his jacket and tucked the pistol into his belt.

"What are you doing, Vassili?"

"I'm going out."

"Have you lost your mind?"

He knew now what he would have to do. Lingered farewells were impossible. He walked toward the door. She blocked his passage.

"Vassili! What is the matter with you?"

"I said I'm going out."

"Are you insane? The Gestapo will have you within an hour."

"I can't take it any more, Lisa."

"Darling," she cried, "our people are working day and night! Another few days..."

He whirled and bolted through the door.

Mike stood across the street from the Piccadilly Cafe. There seemed little activity about. He wondered if he was making a mistake. But it seemed that Lisa was making him do foolish things. He hedged and began to turn back.

"Ah, Jay Linden, right on time. I see you got rid of your two traveling companions."

Mike wheeled around and looked into the mastiff face of Julius Chesney. A second man, apparently a seaman, stood alongside him.

"Well, let us not stand here on the sidewalk, dear fellow. I believe a noonday nip is in order," Chesney wheezed. "Come along. I didn't bring the German army with me. My friend here is Antonis, the captain of the Arkadia."

The three entered the cafe and found an isolated booth. They ordered krasi. Mike studied Antonis, who seemed oblivious as he puffed away on his pipe.

Chesney, talking in whispers, told Mike the Arkadia was a small, trim and fast motorboat that carried a crew of three. The ship's papers would read Crete, but actual destination would be Cairo. Antonis, Mike was assured, knew the route well, having made two other trips with British escapees. Mike's sponsor, the man who was going to pay for his passage, was due to join them shortly.

"When do we sail?" Mike asked.

"As soon as we get another escapee to man the boat."

"Since I saw you last I raised some money. If Antonis and I can handle the boat between us, I'll buy the passage."

The leathery old sailor nodded. He reckoned he and Mike could handle the ship.

"Four million drachmas," Chesney shot out quickly.

"Aren't you stretching it?"

"You are the one who seems eager to leave."

"I'll give you three million if we sail tonight."

Chesney scratched his jowls. "Let me see your money."

Mike placed his bundle of cash on the table. For the first time, Julius Chesney showed emotion. His fat jowls quivered. His fleshy hand darted over the table. Mike grabbed his wrist.

"You take half now—half when we get underway."

Chesney looked at the money, sighed and withdrew his hand and watched Mike carefully as he counted off a million and a half drachmas. Chesney recounted the money, his eyes watering.

A small, gray-haired man entered the cafe and looked around.

"Ah, here comes another three million drachmas," Chesney said. "Over here, Mr. Cholevas!" he called.

The well-dressed elderly gentleman slipped quietly into the booth and nodded to everyone.

"Jay, meet your sponsor. The benevolent friend of the British, Mr. Apostolos Cholevas."

Cholevas nodded quietly.

Mike was curious about the man. He wondered why he was doing this.

"What good is any money if the Germans take over my country?" Mr. Cholevas stayed long enough to have a half glass of wine and to give the money to Chesney. He wished Mike a good trip and asked if perhaps he'd write after the war. The old gentleman departed with a last request—to let the British know what was happening in Greece.

Julius Chesney drew a sheet of papers from his crumpled suit. He spread them out on the table.

"Do you have identification papers, Linden?"

Mike produced the card and papers that bore the name, Vassili Papadopoulos. "Good—good—this saves me an expense," Chesney wrote the name on the ship's papers.

"Now, I believe everything is in order. The gas will be aboard before dark, gentlemen. Antonis, meet me later and I'll have the clearance papers and the patrol schedules."

"A what about inspection of the boat?" Mike asked.

"My dear fellow. Do you cast aspersions on my ability? Ah me, by the time I finish oiling every one's palm there is so little left. So many fingers in the pot, and prices are just outrageous these days."

Chesney shoved his way out of the booth and patted the pocket filled with drachmas affectionately. He extended his hand.

"Do be careful, Michael Morrison," Chesney said. "It would be extremely regrettable if the

Life Itself May Be Only 'Electronics'

BY BRYAN TEVANS

LA JOLLA, Calif. (U)—A Nobel Prize scientist today offered a new hypothesis that life's energy can only be understood in terms of electromagnetism.

He used the term "electronics excitation" and linked it with thyroxine, the human hormone of the thyroid gland.

Dr. Albert Szent-Georgyi, 1937 winner of the Nobel Prize in physiology and chemistry, said the hypothesis was based on known behavior of electrons. He applied this behavior to explain transmission of energy within animal muscle.

The Hungarian-born scientist, now director of the Institute of Muscle Research at the Woods Hole, Mass., marine biological station, said recent discoveries about molecules had disproved chemical explanations of muscular action.

"It became evident," he said, "that there had to be some mechanism to carry the energy from one part of the molecule to the part that had to contract. I asked myself what form of energy could travel in this way. The only answer was the energy of electronic excitation."

Szent-Georgyi said that he believed the energy stored in a chemical within a muscle was Mike stood there, dumbstruck, as Julius Chesney waddled from the cafe.

At 115 She's Careful Eater

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (U)—When a woman gets to be 115 she has to be more careful about what she eats and with she associates.

"That's why," says Mrs. Betty Talley, "I try not to eat anything that's not hog meat or better cakes, and work to avoid meeting with the Yankees." She was born a Negro slave on a Tennessee farm.

transmitted by this electronic excitation. He explained that an electron was excited to leaving its original energy level by reversing its spin. He said that without the presence of a magnetic field, the electron would return to its level too quickly to do any work.

"Disturbances of the electromagnetic field," he added, "will help to reverse the spin. Such disturbances can be created by the oxygen molecule, or by heavy atoms like those of iodine."

"This is most remarkable because thyroxine, the hormone of the thyroid gland, contains iodine and this hormone dominates and regulates out whole energy household."

Szent-Georgyi spoke at an international symposium on marine biology sponsored by the U. S. Office of Naval Research and the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

Crazy-Quilt Weather Is U. S. Pattern

By The Associated Press
March's capricious climate of pers carved a crazy-quilt weather pattern across the nation today. Almost every type of storm—snow, dust, rain, sleet and wind—was reported.

The most severe windstorm of the year struck six western states yesterday, swirling clouds of dust across an 800-mile path from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Waco, Tex.

Howling winds, with snow and falling temperatures, brook back wintry weather from the Northern Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley.

Rain and thunderstorms, with gusty winds, swept across the lower and middle Mississippi Valley northward to the Ohio Valley.

Freezing rain and sleet pelted the western Great Lakes region. The blustery March weather missed most of the Southeast. Temperatures were summerlike in many areas and mostly fair elsewhere prevailed.

The dust storms, hitting areas in Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, caused extensive damage to crops, grazing land and range animals.
